In case of resistance, he was directed to seize the princi ple officera first, using only just so much force as was necessary to accomplish his purpose. Every thing heing ready, 100 marines from the Wabash, and 250 sailors from the Wahash and Saratoga jumped into the launches, a tremenduous sea making the feat very difficult of accomplishment yet the utmost regularity and the most perfect discipline were observed throughout. The landing was effected without the slightest accident. There was no appearance of any contemplated resistance on the part of Walker .-When Captain Engle stepped forward, and pre-sented his demand for the surrender, General W. replied at once: "Captain Engle, I am under your orders."

Some 70 men were immediately embarked on the Fulton and Saratoga—Walker on the former vessel. Some 20 or 30 more slid away into the hushes. Captain Engle at once placed a marine guard over the stores and munitions of war, aud then sent out men to lunt up and bring in the missing fillihusters. Notwithstanding the earc nsed to secure the arms and stores, the strag-gling fillihusters got a considerable quantity of tbcm into the bush, and hid or buried tbem.

On the 18th Commodore Paulding sent, through Captain Engle of the Wabash, his reply. This reply was a model of brevity, but was conched in nearer to the opinions we have entertained than only one interpretation, and invited no rejoinder. The Commodore bluntly disputed all his facts and premises, plainly telling him that his expedivote of the people—is, in our judgment, entirely vote of the people—is, in our judgment, entirel erroneous. These words are, it is "the true in had come there to hreak it up. As regarded his threat to Lieutenant Cilley, he could only say he slavery into any Territory or State, nor to exclude way of taking the sense of the people shall be pursued? They are to form and regulate their omestic institutions in their own way. The peo ple of Kansas thought proper to eall a Conve Commodore Paulding had previously blockaded to make their Constitution, inrestricted as to not

The only question of any practical value now is this, "Is Mr. Buchanan responsible for the action of his agent, Gov. Walker?"

We contend that he is. We contend that he was sent to Kansas to do a special service, and that he has done it! After conniving and winking at his conduct for months, it is too late now for Mr. Buchanan to evade the responsibility by avoiding the real issue. Mr. Walker opposed and denounced the Lecompton Constitution, and if the language of the Message has any meaning the President looks with ill-concealed favor up n that instrument. In consideration, however that the clause recognizing slavery is to be sub mitted to the vote of every ragged ruffian who may chance to be in the Territory when the vote is taken, Mr. Buchanan graciously agrees that the Squatter Sovereigns of Kansas may fix its political status for all time! For one, we object of any such settlement. We shall continue to bject to any settlement made by the miserable hy the New England Aid Society.

AN ATTEMPT TO ACCOUNT FOR BOUGLAS' DEFECTION.

[From the Vicksburg Southron.] As a pendant to the foregoing, and as affording some slight explanation of the unexpected change in the action of Mr. Douglas, we may state that several months since the Illinois Senator disposed of his estate in Mississippi, and having no longer any tangible interest in the "peculiar institution," we presume he thought the occasiou a good one to conciliate the Free Soil fanatics of the North and Northwest. Having done this, they will no longer call him a "dough face," or taunt him as a supple tool of the Slave power. In future we fancy that the "little giant" and his sable name sake Fred., will bave uo difficulty in standing on the same platform.

[From the Memphis Eagle, Opposition.] The issue between Schator Douglas and the would undoubtedly have been shot had Walker crn men, the other of Southern sympathies, be not been compelled to surrender.

out "$50" (the license tax) and inserting "$100:" which was adopted.

Mr. BROWN moved to refer the bill to the committee on Religion: rejected.

Mr. LINDSEY proposed an amendment providing a penalty for betting on games played on the tables or alleys: adopted.

The bill was then recommitted.

It is said that he took all the steamboats on down if he had given them an opportunity to consult about it? Well, that is exactly the position the river, four in number, which he holds now, with the exception of the Charles Morgan, which Commodore Paulding placed in charge of Consul Cottrell, of Greytown. The Fulton had orders to remain at Greytown to receive Ander son's force when it should come down the river.

THE BILL TO PREVENT RUNAWAY MARRIAGES .-Our attention has recently been directed to Mr. Huston's bill to prevent amorous swains from earrying off, after the manner of young Lochinvar, the objects of their adoration, and, although entertaining the very his host appreciation of the legislative ability of the author of the hill, we gratification of brutal lust. hardly think he has exhibited his usual keenness of forethought in devising the provisions of the bill referred to. We will briefly state the objec tions to the bill which at first glance occur to us, and which it is probable will escape the attention of but few members of the Legislature who may be called upon to vote upon it. The first section of the bill reads as lollows:

"Be it cuncted by the General Assembly of the Commouvealth of Kentucky. That any person wheleopes with a white girl under the age of eighteen years, such girl being neitizen or resident of this State, with intent to marry her, without the consent of the person authorized by law to give such consent, and does not marry her, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished by fine and imprisonment

The opponents of this bill are as much opposed to runaway marriages as the author of it, and the will oppose the hill because they are opposed to such murriages. Mr. Huston's object may be good and proiseworthy, but the bill will not accom plish the end sought, but will, on the contrary, have a tendency to promote much greater evils than that against which it is intended to guard No legislative enactment can prevent young people from making fools of themselves whenever they take it into their hadly balanced heads to do so If bars, and bolts, and prison walls, and the sad lessons taught by the experience of others, have not been potent to prevent those who "have loved. not wisely, but too well," from gratifying their whims, it is not to be expected that a mere legis lative enactment will be competent to do it. The "rosy God" will laugh scornfully at the fetters of the law with which legislators may endeavor to manacle his tender, but well proportioned limbs, and, hurling defiance at those he deems his ernel persecutors, will dare to do anything to which caprice may prompt him. Even public sentiment will not and canno restrain him, and we humbly submit that public sentiment in Ken tucky will never enforce or demand the excen tion of the provisions of this bill, but will strong

But the hill will not only prove to be incompe tent to effect the end desired, but it is singularly unjust in its minutiae. According to its provisions, the villaiu who abscouds with an innocent but eredulous girl, with no intention of marrying her, but of betraying and disgracing her, goes scot free; while the man who intends to render her the protection of the honorable name of wife, but who may be prevented from doing so, hy he-

The estensible object of the bill is to prevent runaway marriages: and yet, if a man obsconds with a girl and marries her, the bill does not proment, but reserves this sentence for the luckless wight who clopes with his sweetheart, with the from doing. The bill proceeds upon the hypothesis that to marry a girl without the consent of committing, that wrongful act. It fines and imprisons a poor fellow for repenting of an intention to do wrong, or for failing in an attempt to break the laws, when if he should succeed in such attempt, he would be permitted to depart without molestation. It would certainly be productive of one result-it would inspire a man to do what he had set out to do, whether wrong or not; but it would be opposed to the spirit of the religious couplet: "As long as the lamp holds out to burn, The vilest sinner may return."

This part of the law, if it should become a juries would ever enforce its provisions. It o'clock. Its deliberations were opened by an adand that is the best that can be said for it. But The order of the day, being the consideration of there is another feature of the bill which is eal- the constitution for a State Association of Teacheulated to do a vast amount of harm, and which might reasonably be expected to a sappers mitte appointed for that purpose, was taken up part in undermining the morals of the young peo- aul discussed, and finally adopted. This is undoubtedly the nearest approach to the free love idea of anything that has ever been propagated in Kentucky It substantially gives sufficient personal attractions to induce that number to runaway with her. It would be a sort of Mormonism, with the difference that the woman would be obliged to content herself with one man at a time, with the power to divorce him and take another "at any time during her minority." IF We note in the report of Legislative proeedings, the leave has been granted in the llouse, to intuduce a bill branching the Court of Appeals. We are not prepared to say that this leasure has been matured in view of further complicating the Judeiary system of our State, out we are breibly reminded of the remnrks of llon J. W. Stevenson, when a delegate to the This is the hour that memory consecrates, last Constitutional Convention, upon this subject. And hallowed thoughts come rushing to my heart. We presum: that his opinions upon this, or any other subject, are orthodox with the side of the House from whence this proposition emanated .-We commend the subjoined remarks to their con-

The first reason why I am opposed to branch ing the court is, that it tends to destroy the inde-pendence and the stability of the judiciary.— What leads to enlightened opinions from an udicial tribunal? What tends to judicial stabil principles contained in legal decisions. How is that to be arrived at? By laborious, patient, unceasing investigation of all authorities within their reach, and by a calm consultation and deliberation over them. The science of the dead to save wild deep shadowings of macr hie food prayers wide blown by rushing storms of care and gleening stones that he above the dead. Ye, old year, something sweet has gone with theeliberation over them. The science of the law like every other science, is progressive. New pooks, as well as new principles, are every day being developed and brought forth. Late editions of English works and American editions with American notes and authorities of these English works, are every day being published The judges, in order to arrive at correct princi-ples on any subject should have all their light and all the means of consulting these new works. While judges must exercise the labor and pationee of investigation, yet they must also have in fine libraries, the materials and legal quarries upon which this labor and this patient investi-gation is to be exerted. Can you furnish these naterials more readily by having four branches or one single appellate court? Is it easier to ave one fine library, and a fund set apart in this constitution for its annual increase, by the burchase of new hooks, or is it easier to have our branches and four diminutive libraries ithout increase? I think it is easier to ie. And by having but one, we are more likely to have a good one, with much better prospect of having it annually increased by valuable ad-

THE CLOSING YEAR.

BY MARY ELLA BATCHELOR.

The earth in pale and wintry silence sleeps, Her woven song of streams, and breezes chilled To wild tumultuous sobs. Bereft of all Her many music tones, her hirds, her flowers. Her glorious uffluence of summer charms, No trinmph peals from out her pallid lips But in her chrystal halls she lowly lies-Like some pale shadow of a beauteous dream Asmournful usa wreck of Paradisc. The moon like some lone watcher o'er the dead. Drops sauly down the sky, her silver smiles Are dim with dark-eyed lears, which midnight weaps Above a dreaming world, so hushed, so stilled Withouthe soft embracing arms of sleep Tha p'eu the quiet stars pass in and out Like pale uncertain shapes, their spectral beams ilance o'er the shrowded bills, yet leavo unchanged The solemn awe struck air. With muffled feet The winds creep through the darkened aisles of mist Which like a restless ever surging sea Spreads its white billows far and wide. To night, In this strange mystic hour, they take wild shapes And seem the phautoms of decay, or ghosts Of buried nges robed in shadowy palts Now come to guard and tend the dying year I staud upon the parapet of time-That uarrow strip of hraided joy and gloom Which breaks the future from the breathless past, Aud gaze deep driuking of the lufinite one mingled tide of tenderness and tears. I feet like some lone pilgrim who has seaoued The moonlit marbles of a roined fane. And marked the shivered beams of star-light break Upon its crumbled walls, 'till e'en the gloon house bright and beautiful. Tis thus my heart Gors wandering back through memory's sileut halls "That dreamy Palestine of Pilgrim thought, To plack the joys from our the rained hours And gild the darkness of the present time. The year bas passed and lete no trace beford Fnees familiar, bright and beautiful Peer from the mists of thy departed hours like signal lamps upon a troubled sea, Thy waves consume us, like that tabled bird Whose raven wings could charm the sonl to sleep While yet his gnawing beak struck to the heart And drained the life blood from the recking vein Tis thus our hopes, our drennes, our joys, our fears, All sink beneath thy sdent lapsing stream. But now I turn to that untathonied shore-That lotus garden of the weary soul, Where stands the new year in his kingly crown As bright and beauteous as n new made star Just floating from the mighty hand of God. The souls of angels folded in his arms-Like unborn buds within the heart of earth The sensous knit into one flowery band Play glad attendance in his regal train-And only want his striding steps, to ope Their shuing wings, and that the earth and heavens. With wild sweet flower blooms, and fragrant air. Vice of ONANISM, or SELF-ABUSE, &c, &c.
The HOWARD ASSOCIATION, in view of the awful destruction of human life, enused by Sexual diseases, and the deceptions practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by Quacks, several years ago directed their Consulting Surgeon, as a Cliaritable ACT worthy of their name, to open a Dispensary for the treatment of this class of diseases, hall their forms, und to give MEDICAL ADVICE GRATIS, to all who apply by letter, with a description of their condition, (age, occupation, habits of life, &c...) and in eases of extreme poverty, to FURNISH MEDICINES FREE OF CHARGE. It is needless to add that the Association commands tho highest Medical skill of the age, and will furnish the most approved modern treatment.
The Directors, on a review of the past, feel assured that their labors in this sphere of benevolent effort, have been of great benefit to the inflicted, especially to the young, and they have resolved to devoto themsolves, with removed zeal, to this very important but much desplied cause.
